MARTIAL.

JUNIUS, one of the beſt Sort of Men in the World, that is a Man neither addicted to Faults, nor burthened with Underſtanding, became poſſeſſed of about two thouſand Pounds a Year, at the Age of three and twenty. It was more than he expected, ſo he did not know what to do with it. His Head was not turned to Accounts; and he could not think OEconomy neceſſary. Five Years have paſſed ſince this Addition to his Fortune; and he is now worth about eighteen thouſand Pounds.

No Man is more to be pitied than Junius, for without one bad Quality, and without one Idea of Enjoyment, he has gone through the firſt Steps towards deſtroying himſelf; and he has entered upon Meaſures that will compleat the Work.

Junius dreſſed, though he hated the Trouble of it; and was not once in his Life Coxcomb enough to ſuppoſe any Body took Notice of him: He played, though he had no Tincture of Avarice, nor the leaſt Expectation of winning any Thing that cou'd be of uſe to him: He ſubſcribed to Concerts, but he took Notice of nothing ſo much as the French Horns. And he bought a Share in one of the Theatres, that he might be ſure of a Place on crowded Nights; though he thought there was nothing ſo ingenious as Mr. What's-his-Name's Glaſs of Gunpowder.

A Man like Junius was uſeful to every Body. His Table was in common; his Coach was at the Service of every little Party of Diverſion at Sadler's Wells, or at the Green Man; his Banker was the Caſhier of all his Acquaintance; and to be introduced to him was to ſhare his Fortune. In all this Junius had very little Merit. Your beſt Sort of Men are neither generous, nor hoſpitable, nor obliging, nor compaſſionate; his Character is Indolence; and he will do the fooliſheſt Things in the World, and the beſt Things that can be thought of, if they are propoſed to him, rather than be put out of Temper. There is but one Incident againſt which he is guarded. He thinks he pays ſo dear for his Character, that he ought to enjoy it; and he will not take any Step that ſhall make People doubt his being this mighty good Kind of Perſon.

Among the Follies into which this young Fellow was led by Example, for he had no Sort of natural Propenſity to any of them; it was impoſſible that he ſhould miſs that of a Female Favourite. He ſaw ſome one of thoſe tawdry Triſles at the Command of every Man who could afford it: And he kept a Miſtreſs, as he did a Table, a Coach, and a Purſe, for the good of his Acquaintance. One Thing alone he took care to obſerve, which was, never to admit her into his own Doors, that he might not loſe the good Opinion of the Gentlewomen in the Neighbourhood; nor debar himſelf of the Credit of the Curate's Viſits. The Lady was lodged in Pall-Mall, and ſhe outſhone Ducheſſes.

Perhaps it was not unlucky for Junius that he fell into the Hands of this Creature. She is the moſt expenſive of her Sex; and is one of the few who have ſome Care of Futurity. While ſhe was calling upon him for Jewels, ſhe was teizing him into a Settlement. He was juſt awakened in Time by the Neceſſity of ſelling half his Eſtate; and conſidering that in her Moveables and the Money ſhe muſt have ſaved, ſhe had enough for her Services, he diſcharg'd the Lodgings; and only bad the People give her an hundred Pound Note he left with them, that ſhe might not be a Loſer by not having Time to provide herſelf.

When a Man has been hurt in his Affairs by a Miſtreſs, he generally thinks of a Wife to retrieve them. There is a Way to do this wiſely, but it is not every Man who can arrive at it. Junius reſolved to confer an Obligation on the Perſon from whom he expected ſo much Advantage; and he took a Woman without a Fortune.

Married People are not oftener alike in Face than in Diſpoſition: For it is natural that Men ſhould fix upon that which is moſt like themſelves. Junius, in Conſequence of this Propenſity, naturally fell upon that ſort of Woman we call a Dowdie. One who like himſelf choſe to let Life dangle away as it pleaſed; and who having long perſuaded herſelf of it, found no Difficulty in making him believe that ſhe had not one Fault about her. Delia is a Creole, the Native of a Country where the Generality of Women are the beſt in the World; but thoſe that are good for nothing, are the moſt perfectly diſtaſteful.

Delia was unluckily of the latter Rank. She had brought into Europe all the Laxineſs and Inſolence of the Climate from whence ſhe came; without one Grain of that Affability and Generoſity of Temper that are its true Characteriſtics.

Junius rubs his Forehead, and thinks every kind of Life has Inconveniency. He liſtens to the Voice of his admired Wife, and cries, Good Lord! What Things are Women! Delia declares againſt his Laxineſs as the worſt of Faults, and in the ſame Breath, calls Cæſar to bid Scipio tell Bathſheba to come down Stairs, and pick up her Needle: And when in the midſt of a Declamation againſt ſitting up till twelve at Night drinking, ſhe the other Day called Quamino to mix her ſome Rum and Sugar and Water; on the Slave's aſking if he ſhould put Lemon to it, ſhe bad him pull off his Livery, and go about his Buſineſs, for having the Impudence to ſuppoſe ſhe would drink Punch in a Morning.

Junius ſees ſhe is handſome all this while: But he would be content ſhe had ten Teeth the leſs, if half her Tongue could go with them; he finds, that tho' every Man has Eyes, to have a Noſe, as the Poet phraſes it, is not the Face of one in forty thouſand; and upon ſumming up the Profit and Loſs of Happineſs between his late and his preſent Situation, he ſays it would puzzle a Philoſopher which is worſt, a Miſtreſs out of Doors, or a Wife within them.

Inſpect. N°. 661.

HAGUE, April 26.

THE laſt Letters which the Government has received concerning the Situation of Affairs in the Colony of Surinam, make mention of freſh Attempts of the rebellious Negroes, who have plunder'd one of the Company's Settlements call'd Victoria: But the ſame Letters add, that the Negroes of Sarameca remained quiet, and had given Proofs of their Inclination to live in Peace.

Dublin, April 21. Laſt Thurſday arriv'd here Capt. Denny, from Bourdeaux. In the Bay of Biſcay he took up ſix Men floating on a Plank, being the Remainder of the Crew of a Veſſel that was loſt.

April 24. Sunday a moſt barbarous Murder was committed on the Body of the Wife of John Glenan, at Colemans-Town, a Mile beyond Rathcool, by a Man that her Huſband had employed to cut Furrs, who not content with cutting off her Head with a Chopper, afterwards cut the Throat of her Child, a Girl of 12 Years old. This was done while her Huſband was at Chapel. He alſo robbed the Houſe of 18 Guineas; but Yeſterday he was apprehended and committed to Newgate.

LONDON.

May 5. On Monday the greateſt Part of the Town of Tarvin in Cheſhire, was burnt to the Ground, within the Space of two Hours, and ſeveral Stacks of Corn, Hay and Straw, were conſumed. The Accident was occaſioned by a Chimney taking Fire, and the Flames ſpreading themſelves on the Cathedral Buildings. The Church, Parſonage Houſe, Free School, and about 16 Houſes, beſides Barns, and other Out Buildings, were deſtroyed, and the whole Damage is at preſent computed at 3000 l.

Laſt Week died Margaret Hunter, aged 104, buried at Gateſhead Church in a decent Manner. She was a maiden Lady, and is ſaid to have drank only two Jills of Malt Liquor in all her Life, one at the Age of 50, the other at 60, the latter of which near coſt her her Life.

April 28. Yeſterday Afternoon, between One and Two o'Clock, four young Ladies walking in the Fields near Peckham, were overtaken by a Perſon tollerably well dreſſed, who paſſed them; but the Ladies being in high Spirits, were pleaſed to make ſome witty Remarks on his Perſon, which he over-hearing, turned back, and replied, that as they had taken ſome Freedoms with his Perſon, he hoped they would excuſe his Freedom with their Pockets, and immediately pulled out a Piſtol, (but without any Threatnings) and robbed them of about 35 s. and two Silver Snuff Boxes, and after behaving very politely, told them they were welcome to make what farther Remarks they thought proper on his Actions.

Lancaſter, May 4. The following Story, however ſtrange it may appear, is undoubtedly true:

A Man who lived at the Side of a Common near Galgate, within three Miles of this Place, has lately buried himſelf alive; not according to the common Phraſe, for he has actually done ſo. He digged his own Grave ſome Months ago, and told one Perſon his Intention: The Strangeneſs of the Story ſoon ſpread it abroad, and induced many People to go and ſee this Grave; but the Noiſe it made had pretty near ſubſided, and the Country People's Curioſity was almoſt ſatisfied, until laſt Week, when a Gentleman, who had ſeen the Grave, going to the Place a ſecond Time, in order to ſhew it to a Friend, to their great Surprize actually found the Man dead in the Grave, wrapp'd up in a Blanket, with his Face downwards, and a large Thorn laid over him. How long he had lain there is uncertain; but he had not been ſeen for three Weeks before he was found. He was always look'd upon as a miſerable Fellow, and lived like a Hermit.

St. JOHN's (in Antigua). June 22.

By a private Letter from St. Kitts, dated the 11th Inſtant, we have Advice, that on the 8th, Capt. Cramer, from London, touch'd there in his Way to Jamaica; who informs, that when he was at Deal, Capt. Legg, of his Majeſty's Ship Shoreham, dined on board him, from whom he learnt, that he was then waiting for Orders to proceed to Spithead, in order to embark with our General and Governor, GEORGE THOMAS, Eſq;

BOSTON.

July 2 We hear from North Kingſton, in the Colony of Rhode Iſland, that on the 14th of laſt Month, a Bull and two Cows were killed by Lightning in the Town, and tho' a Woman was milking one of the Cows at the ſame Inſtant, yet ſhe received little or no Hurt.

We are likewiſe inform'd, that about 1500 People, chiefly Germans, had gone from Halifax, and have made a Settlement at a Place about 20 Leagues from thence, called Mallagaſh, now named Lunenburg; and had built a Block Houſe, and almoſt piquetted round the Town when the Veſſels came away.

Extract of a Letter from New London, dated June 22.

'There is a piece of News that Capt. Backhouſe has brought from Dover: He has had a ſhort Paſſage, and ſays it is true, viz. That the King of France has given Dunkirk up to the King of Pruſſia, and that there were five thouſand Men landed there from Pruſſia, under Convoy of ſome Men of War.—Backhouſe tells the Story thus; while he lay at Dover, two Sloops brought the Account, upon which a twenty Gun Ship was diſpatch'd over to ſee into the Truth of it, and that the Day he came away, the ſaid Ship return'd, and confirm'd it, on which an Expreſs was diſpatch'd to Court.'

July 9. Thurſday laſt, about twenty Perſons of both Sexes, went in a Two-Maſt Boat from this Town on a Party of a Pleaſure to Deer Iſland, and anchored the Boat at ſome Diſtance from the Shore, and being impatient to Land, two Men and as many many Women got into a Float, not much bigger than a Kneading Trough, and put off from the Boat, but had not got far from her, before the Float overset, and turned Bottom upwards, by which Accident one of the Men was drowned, but the other getting upon her Bottom, saved himself. At this Instant a fishing Schooner was coming through the Gut, and the People seeing the two Women in Distress, immediately threw out their Boat and took them up, as they afterwards did the Man. The Women were so far gone that they had no Sense or Motion, but are now in a fair Way of Recovery. It is greatly to be wished, that People upon a Frolick, especially on the Water, would be careful and wise, as well as merry.

NEW-YORK, July 2.

By Capt. Seymour, from South Carolina, we have a Letter advising, that about the Beginning of June, one of the Kings of the Creek Indians, with a Number of Attendants, arrived at Charles-Town, in order to renew their Friendship with the English; that after having been suitably entertained, and received Presents, they set out to return; but on the first Night after, a young Fellow, Son to the King, was shot, near Dorchester, and his Scalp with Part of his Scull, carried away. An Express was thereupon sent back to the Governor, who instantly set out with the Town Troop of Horse and a Detachment from the Independent Companies, for Dorchester: But that notwithstanding the most diligent Enquiry, nothing more could be discovered, than that the young Creek must have been killed by an Indian, an Eagle's Feather, and some Beads being left near the Body. 'Tis said, the Creek Indians were much pleased with his Excellency's Appearance, and afterwards proceeded on their Journey much satisfied. We hear further, that just before Capt. Seymour sailed, six Cherokee Indians were brought into Charles Town, who were there supposed to be the Author of the young Creek's Death.

At Norwalk, in Connecticut, about ten Days ago, two Lads of that Place went into the Water to wash, when one of them not knowing how to swim, got out of his Depth, and the other going to his Assistance, they were both drowned, in the Sight of several Spectators, who were not able to help them.

July 16. We have Letters receiv'd in Town on Saturday Night last, from England, dated the 30th of April, and from undoubted Authority, which mentions particularly the Appointment of Sir D'Anvers Osborne, Kt. to the Government of the two Provinces of New-York and New Jersey.

PHILADELPHIA.

July, 19. Last Week a Brewer's Servant of this City fell into a boiling Copper, by which he was so scalded, that he died soon after.

On Tuesday Night a House in Chestnut-street was broke open, and a Silver Watch, &c. carried off.

Yesterday, in the Morning, a Girl was attack'd by Christopher Martin, and Patrick Ryan, on the Highway, betwixt this Town and Kensington, and robb'd of Six Shillings and Eight-pence; but being seen by some People, were immediately taken up, carried before a Magistrate, and sent to Prison. In the Afternoon a Negro Boy was detected picking a Man's Pocket at the Vendue, under the Court-house: And several People, of both Sexes, who could give no good Account of themselves, being found in a disorderly House on Society-Hill, were ordered to the Workhouse.

The same Day a Fire broke out in a Baker's House in Front-street, but was soon extinguished, without doing much Damage.

The Captain of a Vessel from North-Carolina informs, that on his Passage he saw a Sloop ashore high and dry on Cape Hatteras.
